Introduction

This guide will help you to support a claimant make and manage a claim to Universal Credit. It also provides information on the support they can expect to receive from DWP and other organisations.

About Universal Credit

Universal Credit replaces six existing benefits (Child Tax Credit, Housing Benefit, Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA), income-based Employment and Support Allowance (ESA) and Working Tax Credit). If the claimant already receives these benefits they cannot claim Universal Credit at the moment.

It's usually paid monthly - or twice a month for some people in Scotland and is made up of a standard allowance and any extra amounts that apply to them, for example, if they:

- have children
- have a disability or health condition
- have housing costs

Universal Credit does not include help to pay for Council Tax. When the claimant has their own tenancy they will need to claim this help separately. They should contact their local council or visit <https://www.gov.uk/apply-council-tax-reduction>.

What is needed to make a claim

There are a number of things that are needed to make the Universal Credit claim:

- National Insurance Number (NINo)
- address (this can be a care of address)
- email address
- phone number
- bank account
- evidence of identity, and
- where the claimant has a tenancy, we will also need to see a recent tenancy agreement and proof of housing costs

Address options

If the claimant does not have a permanent address, there are options available to them. They can use a care of address, like the address of a family member or trusted friend, if they are staying at a hostel they can use the hostel address as their address or in exceptional circumstances they can use their local jobcentre.

Email address

If the claimant does not have an email address they can get help to set up an email address from the Local Authority Homeless team support, Assisted Digital Support via Universal Support or in the jobcentre.

Opening a bank account

Universal Credit should ideally be paid into a bank, building society, or credit union account that is in the claimant's or their partner's own name. If the claimant has previously tried but not managed to open or access traditional bank accounts we can make a payment using a different method:

- Post Office Card accounts (only in exceptional circumstances, these are being phased out from 2020)
- payments into third party accounts
- Her Majesty's Government Payment Exception Service (used to be Simple Payments)

If they are paid using one of the above methods they should then be offered access to Personal Budgeting Support which will help them to get access to a traditional bank account.

Identification

In order to claim Universal Credit, the claimant's identity must be confirmed. This can be done online via Gov.uk Verify. For more information visit <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/introducing-govuk-verify/introducing-govuk-verify>

If they cannot do this online, they can take one piece of primary (photographic) evidence and 2 pieces of secondary evidence to an Initial Evidence Interview at the jobcentre. Please see Appendix 1 for a checklist of acceptable ID.

If they don't have any identification:

They should speak to a member of staff in the jobcentre or call the service centre, tell them that they have no identification but want to claim Universal Credit, we have processes in place to enable a claim to be made.

Having a representative

We call someone who deals with information on a claimant's behalf, a 'representative'. A representative is different to someone being appointed to act – it is not a legally based appointment.

A representative can be any person or organisation making enquiries on the claimants behalf if, for example, they feel unable to:

- find the information they need
- understand things about their claim

We must have the claimant's permission to allow another person or organisation to act for them and have access to relevant information about them. This permission is called explicit consent. This can be done by the claimant in writing, using the claimant's journal, over the telephone or face to face.

Explicit consent does not last forever and it can be withdrawn by the claimant at any time:

- by making an entry on their online journal (if they have one)
- in person, at an appointment in the jobcentre
- by calling the service centre (The telephone number to call is 0800 328 5644. For Welsh Language call 0800 328 1744 and if they need to use textphone call 0800 328 1344).

When a claimant is incapable of managing their own affairs, because of mental or other incapacity the Secretary of State may, on receipt of a written application, appoint a person aged 18 or over to act on their behalf. We refer to this person as an appointee. For more information on appointees please see: <https://www.gov.uk/become-appointee-for-someone-claiming-benefits>

Duty to refer (England only)

The Homelessness Reduction Act (HRA) came into force in April 2018 it places a duty on local authorities to get involved earlier with the aim of preventing homelessness.

If the claimant is homeless or at risk of becoming homeless they can now be referred to a local authority for housing support regardless of priority need, local connection or if they are suspected of being 'intentionally homeless'.

From 1 October 2018, the HRA places a duty on jobcentres in England to offer to refer a person who presents as homeless or threatened with homelessness to the local authority of their choice in England, with the claimant's consent.

Translation services

If English is not the claimant's first language they can bring someone with them to the jobcentre to translate for them. If they do not have anyone who can do this for them please advise them to let a work coach or service centre agent know as we can arrange for a translator to support them.

Getting online

Claims to Universal Credit are generally made online. (<https://www.gov.uk/apply-universal-credit>) The claimant can use the computers in the jobcentre or public access points computers in libraries. We can also refer them to our Assisted Service Team, who will:

- help create, maintain and fully use the Universal Credit digital account
- coach or signpost to additional support
- support them to make the most of online services to help them prepare for, find, and retain work

Making the Universal Credit claim

Claims for Universal Credit are usually made online, however, if the claimant is unable to use the Universal Credit online service, we can offer alternative ways to make their claim.

Universal Credit can provide help over the phone to complete the claim. The claimant will need to call the service centre and the agent will book an appointment for them to complete the claim. They will need to have access to a computer for the duration of the call. This call can take around 40 minutes and they will need to enter the data themselves.

The telephone number to call is 0800 328 5644 (For Welsh Language call 0800 328 1744 and if they need to use textphone call 0800 328 1344).

If they are unable to use the online service, the service centre agent can complete the online form over the phone for them. The information entered and its accuracy is the claimant's responsibility.

Once the claim has been submitted, the claimant needs to call the service centre to make an appointment with a work coach in the jobcentre. They can use the phones in the jobcentre to book appointments.

The telephone number to call is 0800 328 5644. For Welsh Language call 0800 328 1744 and if they need to use textphone call 0800 328 1344.

Advances

The claimant can ask for an advance payment of their Universal Credit if they are in financial need while they wait for their first payment. For example, if they cannot afford general living expenses.

To apply for a Universal Credit advance they can either:

- apply through the online account,
- speak to their work coach
- call the Universal Credit service centre. (The telephone number to call is 0800 328 5644. For Welsh Language call 0800 328 1744 and if they need to use textphone call 0800 328 1344).

If they want to apply for an advance online through their online account they should click on the 'apply for an advance' button.

If the claimant is part of a couple they will also be asked if their partner agrees to taking the advance.

If they want to apply for an advance they will need to:

- provide account details where the advance should be paid
- have had their identity checked

They can apply for up to 100% of the amount of Universal Credit we expect them to qualify for. Deductions are then made from their Universal Credit payments to repay the advance.

When a claimant receives a new claim advance they can take up to 12 months to pay it back. Once they've started repaying it, if something happens to the claimant that means that they'll be in financial hardship if they continue with their repayments, the claimant can ask for them to be put on hold for up to 3 months. This will only be allowed in exceptional circumstances.

Universal Support

Universal Support (US) is a way that Universal Credit claimants can get advice, assistance and support from Universal Credit staff or locally agreed Universal Support partners.

US provides help with:

- Assisted Digital support (ADS) – to help claimants make and maintain their Universal Credit claim, including accessing and using online services. It can be offered at any time in the Universal Credit claim
- Personal Budgeting Support (PBS) to help claimants manage their monthly payment, support in opening a bank account and speak about paying priority bills

Personal Budgeting Support

There are 3 significant financial changes that Universal Credit brings:

- a single household payment
- being paid monthly
- housing costs, in most cases being paid directly to the claimant then the claimant pays their rent to their landlord directly

DWP can help with these changes in two different ways:

- by arranging money advice or providing budgeting support
- by changing how they are paid

Personal Budgeting Support can be offered within the first 3 months of a claim or when an Alternative Payment Arrangement is set up which can be at any point during the claim.

Money advice

Money advice can be offered online, by phone or face to face usually by organisations with expertise in this area like the Citizens Advice, Money Advice Service or local authorities. If the claimant is digitally capable they can use the online tool: <https://www.moneyadviceservice.org.uk/en/tools/money-manager> If they are not digitally capable, their work coach will refer them for money advice from their local authority.

Changing how people are paid

If the claimant cannot manage the single monthly payment, DWP can consider:

- arranging managed payments to a landlord
- changing how often the claimant is paid if they are finding it difficult to budget monthly, they can ask to have their Universal Credit payment divided over the month so it is paid more frequently, for example, twice monthly or, exceptionally, four times a month
- splitting the payment of an award between partners

These are called Alternative Payment Arrangements (APA). An APA can be requested at any point during claim including as soon as they have made their claim. Speak to a work coach or service centre agent for more information.

Other benefits

Listed below are a number of other benefits which the claimant may be able to claim depending on their individual circumstances. This list is not exhaustive so please use a benefit calculator to ensure the claimant applies for the right benefits: <https://www.gov.uk/benefits-calculators>

Maintaining the Universal Credit claim

Disclosing issues to the work coach

We understand that it is sometimes difficult for the claimant to open up about issues or challenges that they are experiencing but the work coach is there to help them. As a Claimant Commitment needs to be agreed in order to receive Universal Credit, it is really important that the claimant tells the work coach about any issues they may have, like being homeless, at risk of homelessness, drug/alcohol addiction or poor mental health. The sooner the work coach knows, the sooner they can start giving the claimant the support they need. The Claimant Commitment sets out what the claimant has agreed to do to prepare or look for work in return for receiving Universal Credit and so it will be tailored to take account of the claimant's circumstances.

The Claimant Commitment should be reviewed regularly. Please advise the claimant to speak to their work coach if at any point they are struggling with the tasks in their Claimant Commitment or if their situation changes.

Ways of managing the claim

Because Universal Credit is an online system the claimant will usually need to check their account to see if their work coach has set them actions to complete, these are called 'to dos'. If they don't have regular access to a computer the claimant can go into their local jobcentre to check their Universal Credit account or use public access point computers in libraries. Work coaches can help them do this.

Easements

If the claimant is homeless or at risk of homelessness their work coach will establish if they can apply an easement temporarily to allow the claimant to secure stable accommodation. The easement is normally applied for up to one month, but can be extended depending upon the claimant's circumstances. The easement will be reviewed regularly to check the claimant is resolving their accommodation issues. The claimant will need to be actively looking for stable accommodation and will have these steps noted on their Claimant Commitment.

Reporting a change

Please advise the claimant to report any changes in circumstances, this could include:

- getting their own tenancy
- any medical conditions they have
- if they are at risk of homelessness
- find or have finished a job

This list is not exhaustive, for more information see: <https://www.gov.uk/universal-credit/changes-of-circumstances>.

Changes in circumstances can be reported by either:

- signing into their Universal Credit account if they have one
- calling the service centre if they don't have an online account

Service centre: Telephone: 0800 328 9344; Welsh language (report changes): 0800 328 1744; Textphone: 0800 328 1344.
Monday to Friday, 8am to 6pm

Sanctions

If the claimant does not meet their responsibilities without good reason or do what is agreed in their Claimant Commitment, their Universal Credit could be stopped or reduced. This is called a sanction.

To reduce the risk of a sanction being applied:

- make sure the claimant attends any appointment their work coach has asked them to attend. If they cannot attend please ensure they re-arrange their appointment by calling the service centre
- make sure the claimant tells their work coach about their circumstances as the work coach can tailor the Claimant Commitment to take their personal situation into account

Mandatory reconsiderations

If the claimant disagrees with a decision about benefits they can ask for the decision to be looked at again - this is called a 'mandatory reconsideration'. They can do this if any of the following apply:

- they think the office dealing with their claim has made an error or missed important evidence
- they disagree with the reasons for the decision
- they want to have the decision looked at again

The claimant must ask for mandatory reconsideration within one month of the date of the original decision'. They can ask for a mandatory reconsideration by putting a note in their journal, by phone, in writing (by letter or filling in and returning a form) or at an interview.

If they are not sure whether to ask for mandatory reconsideration or what evidence to give, they should call the service centre. They'll be able to explain the reason for their decision and answer any questions.

When the claimant makes the mandatory reconsideration they need to give:

- the date of the original benefit decision
- their name and address
- their date of birth
- their National Insurance number
- explain what part of the decision is wrong and why

For more information please advise them to speak to their work coach, an organisation like Citizens Advice or go to:
<https://www.gov.uk/mandatory-reconsideration>

Help if the Universal Credit payment is stopped or reduced

If the claimant is sanctioned they can ask for a hardship payment if they cannot pay for rent, heating, food or hygiene needs. A hardship payment must be paid back so their Universal Credit payments will be lower until they pay it back.

To receive a recoverable hardship payment the claimant or each member of a couple must demonstrate they are now meeting their work-related requirements. They must be 18 or over and will have to show that they've tried to:

- find the money from somewhere else
- only spend money on essentials

Call the service centre to ask for a hardship payment. The telephone number to call is 0800 328 5644. For Welsh Language call 0800 328 1744 and if they need to use textphone call 0800 328 1344.

Flexible Support Fund

The claimant may be eligible for financial help from the Flexible Support Fund (FSF). This is a locally managed budget that work coaches can access. It can be used to provide training and education that moves them further towards getting a job. It can also be considered to remove barriers that are stopping them:

- searching for work
- from accepting a firm job offer or moving into self-employment

Examples are:

- smart clothing for interviews or to start work
- essential work wear (but not safety wear as the employer has a duty to provide this)
- essential tools and equipment
- travel costs

Please advise them to speak to their work coach for more information about the Flexible Support Fund.

Other support: Passported Benefits

If the claimant receives Universal Credit there may be additional support they can get, for example, free school meals, help with health costs, etc.

If the claimant lives in England, please follow this link for more information: <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/universal-credit-and-other-benefits-quick-guide/extra-support-for-universal-credit-claimants>

If they live in Scotland, please follow this link: <https://beta.gov.scot/policies/social-security/universal-credit/>

If they live in Wales, please follow this link: <http://gov.wales/docs/dsjlg/publications/160701-eligibility-criteria-passported-and-other-schemes-en-v1.pdf>

Housing, service charges and Council Tax

When a Universal Credit claimant takes over a tenancy, they usually have to pay rent directly to their landlord. If they rent from a private landlord, we will need the claimant to provide a tenancy agreement and tell us how much their rent is in order for DWP to include money for housing costs (rent) in their Universal Credit payment.

For social landlords we verify the rent with the landlord and don't need to see a tenancy agreement. The landlord can confirm which service charges are included in Universal Credit and how much the claimant may need to pay.

In some circumstances the housing costs awarded as part of the claimant's Universal Credit award may not fully cover all their rent. Discretionary Housing Payments are a temporary solution to financial difficulty. If the claimant is having financial difficulties advise them to contact their local authority as they may be able to get a Discretionary Housing Payment or visit: <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/claiming-discretionary-housing-payments/claiming-discretionary-housing-payments>.

If the claimant is liable for Council Tax, they may be able to get a reduction. The help they get depends on where they live and their circumstances, for example their income and if any children or adults live with them. Please advise them to speak to their local council about claiming Council Tax Reduction or visit: <https://www.gov.uk/apply-council-tax-reduction>

If the claimant moves into supported housing or temporary accommodation they will need to claim Housing Benefit for help towards their housing costs. Please advise them to contact their local council to make a claim to Housing Benefit.

Claiming in Scotland (Scottish Choices)

If the claimant is making a new claim in Scotland, they will be asked if they want to get paid once or twice a month.

When the claimant moves into accommodation they will be asked if they want the housing amount to be paid straight to their landlord. The landlord will be notified if they choose this.

Claiming in Northern Ireland

Universal Credit is normally paid twice a month to a household, however, the claimant may request a monthly payment.

They may also get money to help pay their housing costs. Their eligibility and how much they get depends on their age and circumstances. The payment can cover:

- rent
- mortgage interest (Support for Mortgage Interest)
- some service charges
- interest on a loan secured against their home

These payments will be paid directly to the claimant's landlord or mortgage lender. They can request for it to be paid to them, allowing them to pay their own rent.

Illustrative examples

Below we have provided 2 scenarios to demonstrate different claimant journeys for those claimants who become homeless or who are sleeping rough. The content of the examples in this guide (including use of imagery) are for illustrative purposes only.

Example 1: Claimant 1

A single parent who became homeless after the breakdown of her relationship, was living at her friend's home with her daughter. This arrangement was temporary as the 2 bedroom property already housed her friend and her own two children.

When she attended the jobcentre, as part of her new claim to Universal Credit she told them about her current circumstances and that she did not have ID as this had been lost in the move. She used her friend's house as a care of address and the work coach asked her a few questions that verified her identity.

The work coach organised an advance payment of her Universal Credit to be made as she had no money for food before her first payment date. She and her work coach discussed the Claimant Commitment and it was agreed that a domestic easement would be appropriate for 4 weeks, this meant that she would not be required to look for work and could really focus on finding accommodation for her and her daughter. She agreed to the offer of a referral to the Local Housing Authority and this was sent immediately outlining her situation.

At her next appointment at the jobcentre her circumstances were reviewed with her work coach. With help from the Local Housing Authority she had found a property to rent. The work coach helped her to record her change in circumstances and explained that her Universal Credit payment would now include money towards her rent. The amount of money in her award for housing costs would not cover all the rent, so she was advised to apply for a Discretionary Housing Payment from her local council. The work coach also advised her to claim the local Council Tax reduction from the council.

She explained she had previously struggled keeping on track with her bills, so to help her manage her money she was referred for personal budgeting support. It was also agreed that the housing costs would be paid directly to her landlord to prevent her from falling into rent arrears.

Once she had moved into her new home she was able to focus on looking for work and her Claimant Commitment was adjusted to reflect the change in her situation.

Example 2: Claimant 2

Claimant aged 18, became homeless after leaving care, he sofa surfed, often staying with different friends. His support worker advised him to claim Universal Credit but he couldn't use a computer. He went to the jobcentre and the Assisted Support Team helped him to make his claim to Universal Credit. As he couldn't use his family or friends address as a care of address, the member of staff helping him with his claim advised him to use the jobcentre as his care of address.

At his Initial Evidence Interview the work coach asked him a series of questions to verify his identity as he had no identification. He attended his New Claim Interview where he shared with his work coach that he sleeps on his mates' sofa. He told his work coach that his support worker was trying to get him into supported accommodation. The work coach recommended switching off his work search requirements for 4 weeks to allow him to focus on securing accommodation. He asked him to come back in 2 weeks time to see how things were going.

The work coach then explained that Universal Credit is paid monthly and it would be 5 weeks until he was paid. He was very worried about waiting that long so the work coach advised him that he could have an advance and explained that he would need to repay it. They also discussed Alternative Payment Arrangements and money management as he was concerned he would not manage monthly payments. The work coach agreed that, under the circumstances, he would manage better if he received his Universal Credit more frequently than monthly.

At his next appointment at the jobcentre he advised his work coach that he had a place in supported accommodation and was moving in a weeks time. The work coach advised him to claim Housing Benefit to cover the costs of his supported housing which he did with the help of his support worker.

He told his work coach that he would be able to start thinking about work when he moved into his supported accommodation. The work coach arranged an appointment for a fortnights time to review his Claimant Commitment and identify opportunities to help him prepare for work.
